SUCCESSFUL WAS INSTITUTE

Which Closed Saturday at Caledonia.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED

Indorsing the Policy of Mayor Scherff.

The Institute was Largely Attended and Proved One of the Most Instructive Ever Held.

At the Saturday afternoon and closing session of the Caledonia Farmers' Institute, there was the largest attendance of any previous and the program proved one of the most extraordinary nature. The Caledonia farmers demonstrated their interest in agricultural education by turning out and making this annual institute the most highly successful ever held in Marion county. At every session, the town hall was crowded to its full seating capacity, and at the closing session people were turned away.

The program opened with music by the mixed choir. A question box was the next procedure. More than fifty questions were placed in the box and some very interesting discussions resulted in answering them.

The first address of the afternoon was given by the speaker Charles McIntire on the subject, "Improving Unproductive Soil." He advised that it first be thoroughly drained, then heavily fertilized and seeded to clover. "Plow under the clover and again seed the soil lightly. Keep this process up until the soil gains sufficient life to produce a heavy crop," declared the speaker.

Mrs. R. D. Smith read a very interesting paper on the subject, "My Experience in Raising Chickens." She disclosed some unusual details in the line of chicken raising and specially advised the farmer to raise more chickens, declaring them fast money makers.

One of the most pleasing numbers of the afternoon's program was a vocal quart rendered by Little Misses Lena and Leona Thow. A recitation "Land Poor," by Adela Martin was highly appreciated.

"Some Problems We Must Solve" was the subject of the closing speech of the institute delivered by A. H. Judy. Mr. Judy rehearsed the main points brought out in his previous lectures during the institute, emphasizing the things which the farmer should give special attention. He declared that the farmer should aim at higher education, which tends toward higher citizenship.

Before the institute adjourned, the resolution committee, composed of Messrs. D. W. Ault, W. L. Russell and J. T. Brockelsby, reported a valuable set of resolutions which were later adopted. Their sum and substance follows:

Resolved: That we indorse the reform movement in politics, which is general throughout the state. We favor county local option. We favor the continuance of the salary system pertaining to county offices.

That we indorse the procedure of Mayor Scherff of our county seat in his determined efforts to better the morals of the city and county. We express appreciation of the words of welcome from Mayor Gruber, our sincere thanks to the press for its many courtesies, the state speakers Messrs. McIntire and Judy and all others who have in any way contributed to the success of the institute.

The unfortunate man has for the last year been subject to spells of despondency and during the past week has become violent. His affliction results in his tearing every stitch of clothing from his body, and when taken into custody Sunday afternoon by Sheriff Drown and Deputy Johnson, he was found sitting on a bed in this condition.

Mr. Stoner is 32 years of age and a married man. The officials brought him to this city in a cab and found it necessary to strap his arms to prevent him from tearing off his clothing on the return trip. DIVINE SERVICES HELD IN LOCAL HOUSES OF WORSHIP

Rev. D. H. Bailey Gives an Interesting Address on the Subject "The Life of Charles Spurgeon--Revival Services Growing in Interest at Lee Street Mission--Rev. Mr. Rourke Delivers Powerful Sermon on, "If I Should Die Tonight"--"Prepare to Meet Thy God," Subject of Rev. Hensel's Address--Rev. Platt Lectures Before the Y. M. C. A.

One of the most interesting addresses delivered in any of the Marion churches Sunday was that of Rev. D. H. Bailey at the Epworth M. E. Church Sunday evening, when he chose for his subject the life of Charles Spurgeon, whose example has been an inspiration to young ministers for many years.

Rev. Bailey paid a most glowing and eloquent tribute to the famous Englishman. He said that Spurgeon began to preach when he was but 18 years of age at Bedford, England, and for two years, he held that pastorate. During the entire time Spurgeon preached every night of the year, either in his own church or at some of the surrounding towns.

Two years later this eminent divine was called to the St. James Cathedral in London at the age of 20 years and for 38 years was the pastor of that one church continuously. In all that time, Spurgeon never missed preaching at least one sermon a day, so that for 385 days of every year, covering the entire time of his service as a minister, and until the time of his death, he preached a sermon every day—more than any other minister has ever preached either before or since the death of one of the most eminent, inspiring and lovable characters in the Christian ministry.

Spurgeon died at the age of 58 years; but during the time he held charge of St. James church, he built the mammoth tabernacle which seated ten thousand people.

Charles Spurgeon was a Baptist, both his grandfather and great grandfather on the maternal side, being congregationalist ministers. It was said of his mother that during the boy's younger days, she prayed that he might develop into a minister, and in his later life he frequently laughingly recalled to her that her prayers had not only been answered, but more for the reason that he was not only a minister, but a Baptist minister.

Among the many other strong and forceful characteristics of the man, enumerated by Rev. Bailey, was Spurgeon's wonderful faculty of somehow or other, knowing that some man in his vast audience would be touched by his sermons. It happened frequently the pastor said, that after one of Spurgeon's sermons, some man would come to him and ask how he (Spurgeon) knew that man was in his audience; how he knew how that man felt, and how he came to know so exactly almost that man's very thoughts. It was this spirit of sympathy which won hundreds to the church, and made Spurgeon one of the greatest preachers that ever lived.

A congregation that filled all of the seating and standing room space at the Lee street Presbyterian Mission was present last night at the revival services conducted by the pastor, Rev. C. E. Lowrie.

The pastor spoke on the subject, "Home," which he found in the text at John 14:2, "In my Father's House there are many mansions." The speaker called attention to the home of boyhood, the love, tenderness and good feeling that is there apparent. He pointed out that the home of the Father of Men is also a home of the boy and for the man, but that the path to the home is narrow and has many turns.

"The path is filled with difficulties and it is hard to follow, but the guide is the Bible and if the guide is followed, the seeker will not be led astray. The Bible is the compass that will keep the wanderer in the straight paths. If like the prodigal, he wanders from the path and with new endeavor finds his way back, he will be welcomed as was the prodigal son," said the speaker.

The sermon was well received and the speaker held the entire attention of his congregation throughout. The revival services are doing a large amount of good and many persons are being brought to the altar. The services will be held every night this week, excepting Saturday. Tonight and tomorrow night Rev. George M. Rourke of the First Presbyterian church will assist the pastor and large congregations are expected to attend.

"If I Should Die Tonight," was the subject of a powerful sermon delivered by Rev. G. M. Rourke at the First Presbyterian Church Sunday night. The sermon was based upon the Twentieth verse of the Twelfth Chapter of St. Luke. "But God said unto him, Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee; then whose shall those things be, which thou hast provided?"

The speaker described the characteristics of the wayward one, the sinner and the person who fears the thoughts of death. He first declared that he preferred his body to his soul, second he prefers the world to God and third he prefers time to eternity. "He has no star in his universe; no guiding principles, his dinner table and wine parlor is his chief requisite and in them he is content," declared the pastor. Continuing he declared that we should not devote so much of our time to earthly things, but seek the kingdom of God. Give alms, be ready at a knock to open to our Lord whensoever he cometh. The people must take this time of grace, for it is a fearful thing to die without reconciliation.

The Calvary Evangelical church edifice was occupied to its full seating capacity Sunday evening, and very powerful evangelistic services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Hensel. The pastor talked on the theme, "Prepare to Meet Thy God."

He declared it the chief event in every man's life and said that a meeting is inevitable. "The condition of your soul determines the nature of that meeting, and it is the natural desire of every heart to meet God in peace, therefore get right with God," emphasized the speaker. In the concluding thoughts Rev. Hensel spoke of repentance through Christ and belief in God as the preparatory work to God and Heaven.

The pastor announced that the meetings would continue through the week, the services being held each

Rev. Byron C. Platt delivered the last of his series of lectures to young men, before a large audience at the regular Sunday afternoon men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday, "The Young Man and His Religious Life," was the subject from which the speaker derived a score of interesting and helpful thoughts. He divided his talk into three distinct divisions: first, that the religious young man should have the proper vision of God; second, that he should have a clear vision of himself; third, that he should have a vision of the field or of his possibilities. The lecture was founded on the story of Isaiah the Prophet and was presented in clear manner.

In connection with the address, the Y. M. C. A. glee club sang a very pleasing selection and Mr. C. F. Church, baritone, rendered a vocal solo. He was accompanied by Miss Grace Seffner.

At Wesley M. E. church at the morning service, the pastor Rev. C. E. Rowley spoke from Ephesians 5:25-27; and in the evening, he addressed one of the largest congregations ever assembled in Wesley church, upon Romans 5:20, "Where sin abounded, grace did much more abound." The preacher observed, "It is a great thing to believe the Bible. People are apt to speak very lightly about believing the Bible. Very readily they exclaim, 'Yes, I believe the Bible.' We ought to examine our hearts, and see if we really do believe it. Many church members claim we cannot live without sin; and yet, this scripture teaches that where sin abounded, grace did much more abound; hence, by the grace of God, a man can be made more of a Christian than he has ever been a sinner." The case of Jerry McCauley, of New York City, was referred to, as an illustration. The speaker applied the text especially to Christians, showing that, though they may have been hindered by sinful tempers, abnormal and unwholesome appetites, and by fear; according to the Word of God, they may have complete victory in their lives, and realize the much more abounding grace in their hearts.

Although the entire auditorium of the church was packed, some fifty or seventy-five were obliged to stand through the whole service. The revival meeting will be continued through the week.

WILLIAM DAVIS PAINFULLY BURNED

Liniment Ignites After Being Applied to Foot.

Flesh was Seared Into Sickenings
Little Curls Before Flames
Could be Extinguished

William Davis, of North Main street, met with rather a peculiar and very painful accident Saturday evening. Mr. Davis was at his stable on North Main street, and had just rubbed a quantity of liniment on his left ankle, which was causing him considerable annoyance and pain. He then stood in front of an open gas fire to dry the liniment. The stuff ignited and in a moment the man's leg was enveloped in flames, burning and searing the flesh as far as the knee.

In many places the skin was crumpled and twisted into sickening little curls and the pain was frightful. Dr. C. T. Wiant was summoned, and after a time succeeded in somewhat allaying the unfortunate man's sufferings. It is thought that the liniment must have contained gasoline.
